Our good work in the fleet continues. In the last two weeks, we've supported HMCS Calgary and HMCS Victoria at sea, and we completed our work period in HMCS Winnipeg to allow her to sail for sea trials and for Force Generation (FG). We started a work period in HMCS Regina to allow for continued FG until her 3 rd line maintenance cycle starting this summer. And, of course, we continued with our highest-priority project, HMCS Vancouver , to ensure she enters the Tiered Readiness Program in the best state possible. Also, we'll be starting a short Defect Rectification Period in HMCS Victoria on Friday, when we can address some critical defects and get a head start on work required in the short work period starting in May. Through all of this, your work has been impressive: we have been close to, and have even exceeded, 3,000 hours per week on a number of ships over the last few months – this is very good performance, and the whole team, both executing the work directly and those supporting, should be proud of our accomplishments.
